Program Overview

This training takes you from the foundations of breath theory through to leading your own sessions and building a breathwork practice of your own. It moves in four pillars, opening with orientation and closing with certification, so each stage builds directly on the one before it.

Along the way you'll study the history and physiology of breath, practice the core techniques and modality deep-dives that make up a facilitator's toolkit, work through embodiment and personal release practices, and then turn that foundation into teaching skill and a working business.
